Atrium's "Training Tuesdays" Tackles New EPA Rules

Free, targeted webinar designed to educate remodeling professionals on Fed's new Renovation, Repair and Painting (RRP) lead paint ruling

DALLAS – Continuing to provide proactive solutions and value-added services for remodelers and building industry professionals, Atrium Companies, Inc., manufacturer of Atrium family of brands, announced today that it will continue its award winning "Training Tuesdays," with a complimentary webinar titled, "EPA's Renovation, Repair and Painting Rule: Myths, Realities and Clarifications."

The free educational webinar will be held on August 17, 2010 at 1:30 p.m. ET (10:30 a.m. PT). Register online at www.trainingtuesdays.com.

The online seminar will cover the EPA's Renovation, Repair and Painting \(RRP\) Rule that went into effect on April 22, 2010. Since then EPA has made numerous changes and addendums to the rollout and implementation of these new rules. The seminar will answer the bottom line aspects of what remodelers need to know regarding this new regulation and how it will affect their business.

In this special Web-seminar, experts Patrick Connor and Jack Anderson from the CONNOR Institute will freely share their knowledge as two of the foremost authorities on EPA lead paint rules in the country.

Current estimates indicate that only about 10% of the remodeling contractors are operating in compliance with the new regulations. This webinar will help contractors achieve compliance.

Participants will discover what it takes to be a Lead-Safe Certified Firm including:

- How to become an EPA-certified renovator
- Rethinking job estimates and costs
- How a simple fifty-cent investment could eliminate a five hundred thousand dollar expense
- When to test or not to test
- Significant dates to watch in the industry
- How to roll out lead-safe work practices such as warning signs, dust containment, staff training and best practices in cleanup
- Learn how to follow correct protocol by verifying cleanliness and keeping appropriate records of verifications
- Moreover, ask questions of the experts that directly pertain to a remodeler's business

To register for this Training Tuesdays webinar session, participants are encouraged to go to the Web site and register. Session confirmations and reminders will be sent via e-mail to registrants.

New topics and spokespeople for additional training dates will be announced on the Web site throughout the year. Check back often for the best free training sessions the window industry has to offer, Training Tuesdays. www.trainingtuesdays.com
